1. On or about 12 September 1953 the antiaircraft defense of Constanta were tested by mock air attacks. All shipping in the harbor was immobilized and no ships were allowed to enter or leave the harbor from mid-afternoon until late at night.
2. The city was blacked out and when an airplane was heard overhead, the searchlights came on. Since the airplane was picked up immediately by the searchlights, they are apparently guided by radar.
